

Shared Cities: The Finale

The growing urban population faces various challenges. How can we find creative answers for that? This is just one of many questions and topics which have been discussed during the international project Shared Cities: Creative Momentum in the past four years. Now the time has come to present the accomplishments.

The two-day festival Shared Cities: The Finale will not only bring together skilled urbanists, curators or theorists of architecture. It will also be open to the public, since sharing of information, knowledge, governance, space and infrastructure has become the new imperative in the architectural and cultural discourse.

Virtual Ritual — Premiere

Jan Mocek

This original gaming performance takes its viewers to the parallel world of online video games. Virtual space offers its users endless possibilities to enjoy themselves without the constraints of physical reality. Urban researcher Osamu Okamura, YouTuber Atlet, photographer and gamer Adéla Vosičková join an expert gaming panel to unpack the hidden mechanisms and rituals that shape not just virtual cities but also the cities we live in.

Virtual Ritual is co-produced by Goethe-Institut, Divadlo Archa and SixHouses as part of the Shared Cities: Creative Momentum project.

Shared Identities, Spaces and Politics in Central Europe

The series of panels attempts to draw new maps of Central Europe based on the Shared Cities Atlas. The aim is to contextualize the main topics of the Shared Cities project within a broader international discourse.

📍 CAMP

19.00

1. Panel | Shared Identities and Shared Contemporary Practices in Central Europe

30 years after the fall of the Iron Curtain, the notion of sharing seems to be forgotten in Central Europe. Can it be revitalised? We'll take a look at successful examples and will show how architecture can support this endeavour.

Keynote: David Crowley Moderator: Milota Sidorová, with Olja Triaška Stefanović and Samu Szemerey

19.45

2. Panel | Digital Sharing & Data Commons

Open access to information is a precondition for a knowledge-sharing society. Even though vast amounts of data on cities are already being shared, there is still a gap between the “ability to access” and the “ability to understand”. How to promote efficient sharing of knowledge? How to ensure private data protection at the same time?

Keynote: Peter Mörtenböck and Helge Mooshammer

Moderator: David Bárta

20.15

3. Panel | Activism and Politics of Urban Space in Central Europe

In order to catalyse shared urban governance and decision-making, municipalities need to pay more attention to citizen participation. How to develop a city through activism? How to preserve urban spaces as spaces for negotiation? What are the strategies of resistance to political pressures?

Keynote: Elke Krasny Moderator: Katarzyna Wielga-Skolimowska, with Szilvia Zsargo, Ivan Kucina and Matthias Einhoff
